To Irish-America, Beware !

For many years Sinn Féin has had to fend off slurs, distortions and outright lies in the British and Irish media, where journalistic standards are well below those employed by the mainstream media in the U.S. Unscrupulous reporters and papers print outrageous stories and lazy ones then reprint and sometimes embellish them.

A prime example of this occurred last week.

* October 12 - Jim Cusack, a notoriously anti-republican reporter known for dubious stories, wrote a story in the Sunday Independent, a newspaper all too receptive to such journalism, that "the IRA" had lost 200 million in the Wall Street crisis. He injected Gerry Adams' name into the article in a gratuitous attempt to slur him, but hid behind only unnamed "sources" to support his "story".

* October 13 - The Irish Star newspaper picked up the story but claimed that it was "Sinn Féin" that had lost 200 million and indicated that it was actually "known" that a senior republican had visited New York to deal with the matter. But added no sources.

* October 14 - The Belfast Newsletter picked up the story and quoted a unionist leader stating "republican sources have been quoted" to support the story, but fails to mention the "sources" were unnamed.

The New York Metro also picked up the story citing the “Irish Independent” newspaper as its source.

* October 15 - Irish Justice Minister Dermot Ahern in a disgraceful moment repeated these falsehoods, increasing the so called amount to 250 million, in an attack on Sinn Féin in the Dail.

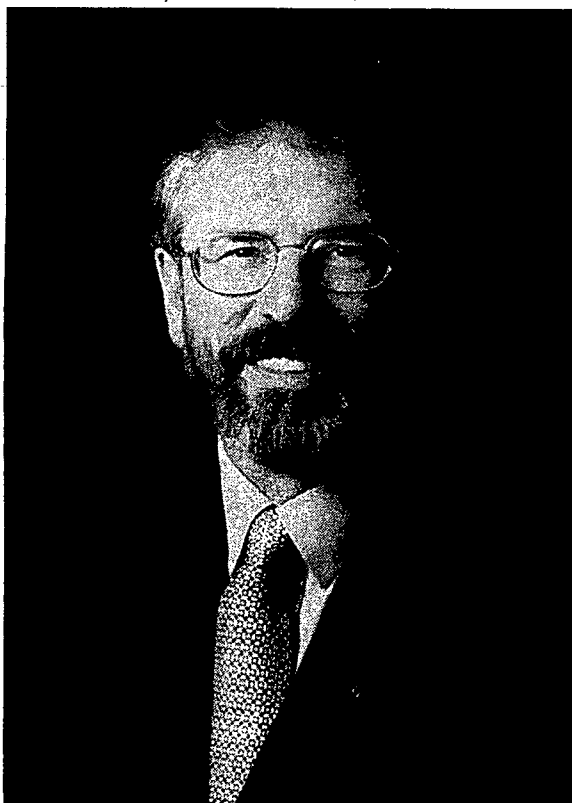

It is despicable that the media, an integral part of society upon which people have a right to expect accuracy and integrity, engage in such practices. It is disgraceful that the Irish Justice Minister encourages them. We call upon all fair minded people to beware of such practices and protest their use.
